The Heirs Of Peter Hazelbaker

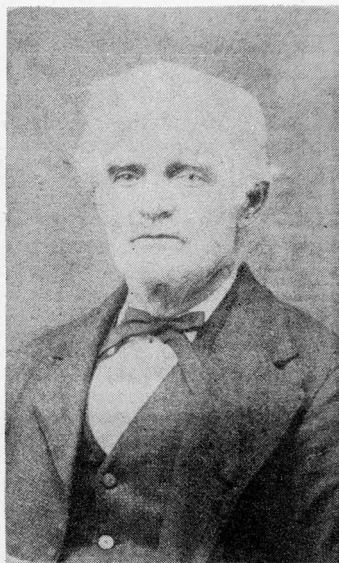

Peter Hazelbaker married Elizabeth Shively, the daughter of Daniel Shively (b. 1709) and Barbara Tuschumi. Peter and Elizabeth had six sons; Peter, Daniel, John, Jacob, Abraham and George. The following excerpt is from the book titled "The Old and New Monongahela" and details George Hazelbaker's family.

George lived beyond all of his brothers. He was born in Berkely County, West Virginia, January 18, 1790. His wife was Matilda Dunlevy, sister of Andrew Dunlevy. She died in 1853. After his marriage he erected the lower part of the old house on Main street in Bellevernon where now stands the house owned by A. L. Brown and occupied by Abe Lewis. In the old house George and his wife first set up housekeeping and there he carried on the has business until he and Dunlevy started the shop in the Billiter house. He also resided for a time on the Gould farm, then on the Levi Johnson, then on the Rutan farm opposite Columbia owned now by W. J. Manown. He moved from this farm to the Cooper farm near the mouth of Maple Creek and finally in 1841 he purchased the farm on which he died, in Allen Township, from Abia Allen and Robert Stockdale.

His son Andrew married a daughter of Thomas Frye and died about the year 1856 near Lock No. 4. Joseph died at the homestead unmarried. Anthony lived for many years in the house near the mouth of Maple Creek now owned by Charles Baltzee. He carried on the flouring mill which stood between the dwelling and the present bridge. The mill has passed away. Anthony over thirty years ago moved to Illinois where he died a few years since. Jacob married a Miss Crow and lives in Clarion County. George married a Miss Riggs and lives on part of the homestead and John resides in Allen Township not far from Wood's Run.

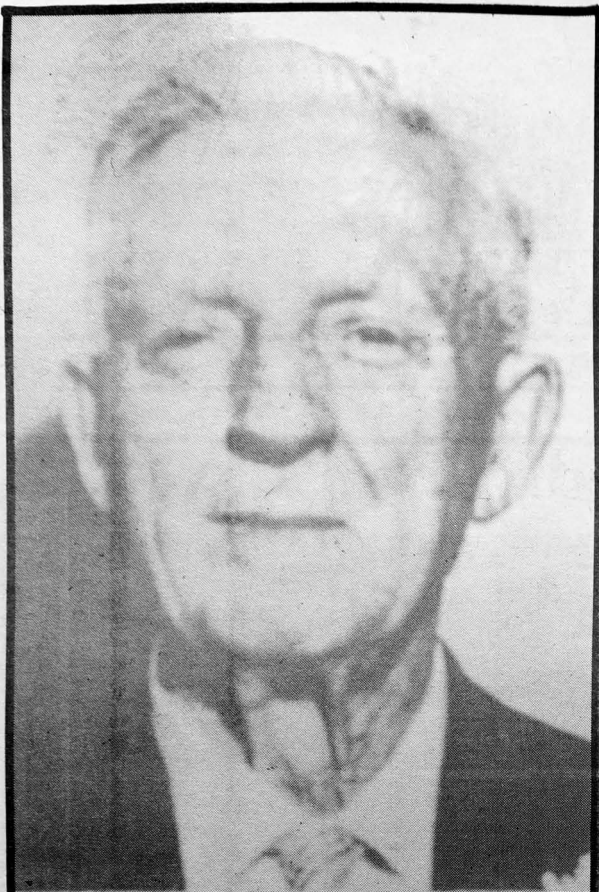

Matilda married Joseph Wolf and resides in the west. Mary married John Cooper, now deceased. She lives in Illinois. Sarah Ann is the wife of Addison Cummings, of Allen Township. Margaret married R. C. Guffey and died in North Bellevernon. George Hazelbaker, the father of this large family died on the home farm, June 23, 1880. He united with Rehoboth church in this seventy-fifth year and remained in that membership until his death. He was a good citizen, a genial neighbor, and above all a Christian. His remains were interred in Howe Cemetery.

Dedication

This second edition is dedicated to Jacob Hazelbaker (b. 4-24-1818 d. 11-22-1898) and Martha J. (Crow) Hazelbaker (b. 1-8-1829 d. 6-1-1912) pictured above and their son Calvin M. Hazelbaker, at right, (1855-1923). These rare photographs courtesy of Leslie Hazelbaker.

Calvin M. Hazelbaker

Calvin Hazelbaker of Lewiston, Idaho, was born on February 12, 1883 in Custer County, Nebraska. The family moved to Missouri for five years; "To rest the mules", as Calvin stated it. They went on to Grangeville, where he was a bookkeeper at Miller Implement Company and where he met and married Irene Rode in 1913.

He became deputy treasurer in Idaho County after they moved to Idaho, and they later moved to Lewiston where he worked for Morrell Construction Company.

Calvin was an avid enthusiast of the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers for many years. While declining to take part in any contests he was an excellent and precise fiddler. He was confined to a wheel chair so he often had groups of fiddlers to his home. He was acclaimed by many as a most accomplished fiddler.

Calvin died in 1971, and is survived by his wife, two sons, and three daughters.

Ray C. Hazelbaker

Ray Hazelbaker of Lewiston, Idaho, came into this "fiddling world" on July 6, 1915, in Grangeville, Idaho, and with the exception of the six years in the Air Corps, he has lived in Idaho all his life.

His boyhood was spent on a small ranch northeast of Grangeville, with his parents Calvin and Irene Hazelbaker and a brother and three sisters.

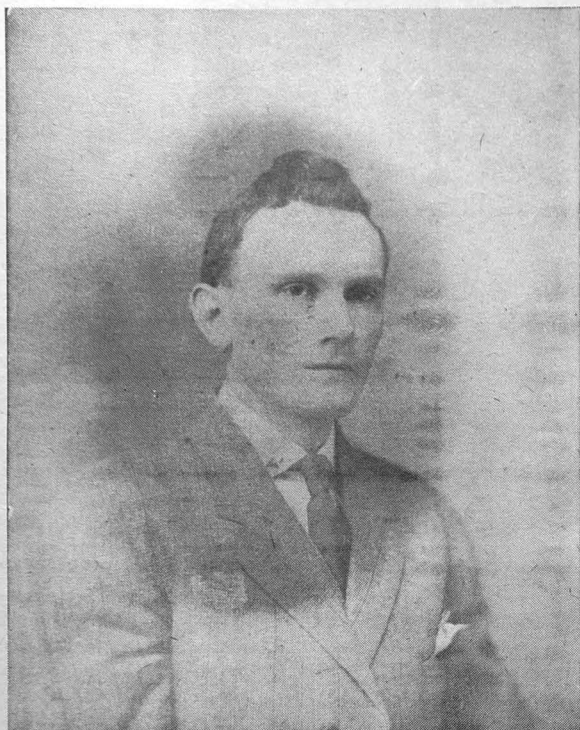

Ray was exposed to fiddle music all his life; his father being an excellent dance fiddler. As he says, "Some of it gradually rubbed off on me."

Ray is married to Mary Alice Hazelbaker and they have six children and they still live in the home they built when the family was growing up. He was a contractor and carpenter for twenty-seven years and is now the Building Inspector for the City of Lewiston.

His most prized possessions are the basic training in fiddle making his father taught him, along with all his fiddle making tools. From this knowledge, which he put into use only a few years ago, he has made twenty-six fiddles. He and his wife have attended two conventions of the National Violin and Guitar Makers at Globe, Arizona, where his entries placed high in tone and over all points.

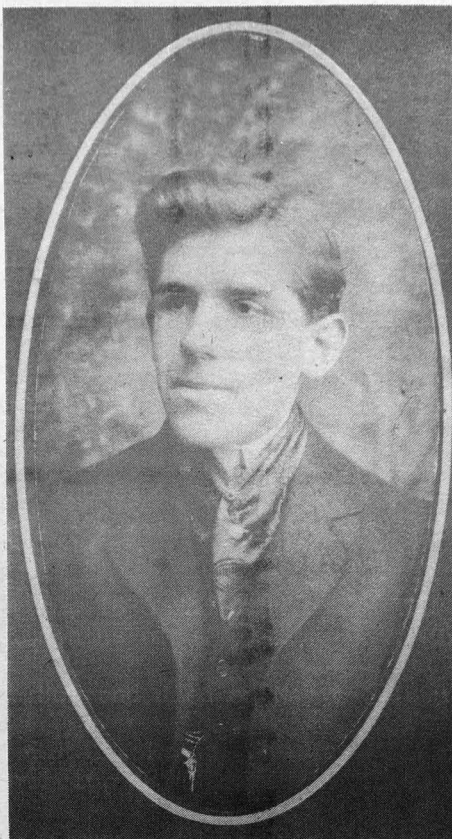

Ray joined the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers in 1963, and was Chairman of District II in 1968-69. He and his wife were Co-editors for the Idaho Fiddlers Newsletter for two years.
